It is obvious that his father was a deep disappointment to him.

One of our problems is in getting these boys to have a place in the world," he says. "We must get them to work and to be self-sufficient."

But all is not gloom and doom. The boys are not without hope. They are working hard and are making progress.

"That," he calls with good natural severity. "That's that."

And so night comes to St. Michael's Farm. Father O'Connell goes on his inspection tour.

A high-contrast, black and white image showing a close-up of a textured surface, possibly a book cover or a piece of paper, with a dark, irregular shape in the center. The image is heavily degraded with noise and artifacts, making it difficult to discern specific details. The central dark shape appears to be a hole or a deep crease in the material. The surrounding areas are a mix of white and black pixels, suggesting a rough or aged texture.

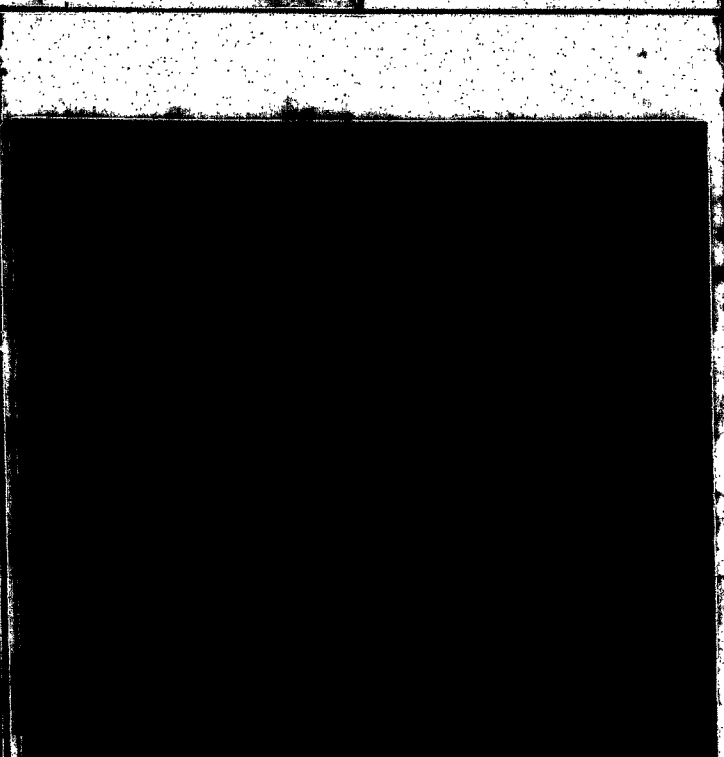

A black and white photograph showing a dark, textured surface, likely a book cover or a piece of fabric. A vertical strip of lighter, possibly metallic or reflective material runs down the left side. The main surface has a mottled, grainy appearance with some lighter patches and darker areas, suggesting a complex texture or perhaps a reflection of light. The overall tone is dark and moody.

This micrograph shows a cross-section of a polymer matrix. A prominent horizontal crack runs across the center of the image. Above and below this crack, there are bright, irregular regions that appear to be voids or inclusions. The matrix itself has a textured, slightly granular appearance.
